Dhananjay Dhumal said DPP's ties with Congress does not affect his position in Punjab assembly Highlights DPP makes a comeback after two years of foreign posting Dhumal urged that the party boycott the BJP in the assembly elections Dalit leader wants to ally with BSP and 'other progressive parties' Pratibha Singh was ousted from the Rajya Sabha. Now, the leader of Punjab's Dera Sacha Sauda, Dhananjay Dhumal, a Dalit leader who heads the SAD, has become the first sitting legislator to return from the Rajya Sabha after two years. Dhumal's return from his current assignment abroad could spell trouble for the BJP. The saffron party is hoping to win at least 15 of the 16 Lok Sabha seats in Punjab. In the state, SAD is the ruling party with the support of Congress, while BJP will be a third party. But the saffron party is betting on an alliance with other regional parties. "We haven't discussed an alliance but we are open to talks with anyone," Dhumal told NDTV in an interview. Dhumal is likely to return to the state after the Rajya Sabha term ends in August. "I don't have much of a plan for Punjab at the moment," he said. "I am a Sikh and I can't be associated with the BJP... If Punjab looks for a political solution, I am more than happy to be part of any alliance that can help the BJP and the Congress to get elected," he said. Asked whether he would support the BJP, he said: "If there are Dalit leaders in the state, they should not ally with the BJP as it doesn't treat Dalits well, in Punjab as well as India. "We will not support this... Our party will play a key role in the state... It's a fact that the Akalis are friends of the BJP in Punjab. The SAD will not be part of any kind of an alliance." Dhumal was the president of the Akali Dal in 2001 and 2002, but quit after Gurbax Singh Pannu resigned as chief minister. The SAD decided to form the government in the state with the help of Congress, when the BJP was in alliance with the Congress in Delhi. With inputs from Navin NischalaniPosts
